

RICKARD GETS BIG FIGHT

Pugilists Agree to Accept Ely
Promoter's Offer

WILL GET $101,000 PURSE

And Two-thirds of the Moving Picture
Profits—John and Jeffries Will Fight in San Francisco, Probably on July 4.

New York, Dec. 3.—The world's championship fight between James J. Jeffries and Jack Johnson will be held in San Francisco before a city organized by "Tex" Rickard of Ely, Nev., and Jack Gleason, probably on July 4, 1910.

The bid made by Rickard and Gleason of a purpose of $101,000 and the contestants to take 68 2-3 per cent of the moving picture receipts was accepted by the representatives of Johnson and Jeffries yesterday afternoon.

The successful bid provides that the fight shall take place in California, Utah or Nevada on a date to be set later, but it was stated that, without doubt the mill would take place in San Francisco. In view of the fact that James Coffroth, manager of the Mission Athletic club of Colma, Cal., controls certain patents on moving pictures, it was thought that Rickard and Gleason would likely enter into some arrangement with him whereby they could have the fight take place in the Colma arena.

T. J. McCarney of Los Angeles and Eddie Graney of San Francisco made a vigorous protest against the accepting of Rickard's bid, declaring that their bids were higher and should have been accepted.

The final articles for the fight will be drawn up and signed in Hoboken, N. J., to-day.

Sugar Trust Lawyers Fight to Show
Headquarters Knew Nothing of Customs Robberies.

New York, Dec. 3.—Counsel for the sugar trust employees on trial before Judge Martin in the United States court fought desperately yesterday to keep the trial of sugar cheating from leading from Williamsburg piers into the office of the company at 117 Wall street. Though the lawyers for the six men before the court have denied that the trust furnishes the money for their expenses it seemed at times that they were fighting harder to save the names of the men in the head office of the trust than to save those on trial.

On top of the mass of detailed evidence already presented in an effort to convict six former employees of the American Sugar Refining company of underweighing friends, the government yesterday offered further testimony of alleged crooked work on the Williamsburg sugar docks. The case is expected to take at least two weeks to try, but Judge Martin is showing every disposition to hurry the proceedings.

Testimony in yesterday's session of trial disclosed that the prosecution is hampered by missing witnesses. Two employees of the federal district attorney's office, who have been working in the sugar investigation, testified that they had found it impossible to trace a sugar checker named Alexander, who had been employed by the company, or to locate various other men whose testimony is wanted.

SUICIDE ON BRIDAL TOUR.

Capt. W. A. Johnson Couldn't Pay
Bill.

Salt Lake City, Dec. 3.—Threatened with eviction from the hotel where he has been staying with his bride, because he couldn't pay his bill, Capt. W. A. Johnson, a well-known mining expert, took cyanide of potassium Wednesday and was found dead in his room.

Acquaintances say that Johnson was formerly manager of the Guggenheim mining properties in Nicaragua and South America, that he served Cecil Rhodes in South Africa, and made a brilliant record in the Boer war under the British flag. He is said to have spent a fortune in mining claims in Nevada.

WILL NOT HAVE IT.

American League Unalterably Opposed to Longer Schedule.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—President Johnson of the American league, declares there was no truth in the report that six club owners in his circuit favor a schedule of 108 games. He says his whole league is opposed to a lengthening of the present schedule, and, furthermore, that it will not stand for any change, except one providing for less games than are played under the present arrangement.

He believes the National league wants the longer season, but it would be almost impossible, of course, for the change to be made in one organization and not in the other.

A MODEL HEN FARM

Being Conducted by Harry Green in Essex Junction.

Essex Junction, Dec. 3.—Weary of the grind of busy city life and poor in health, Harry Green, a young Burlington man, has gone to raising poultry on a little place in the village of Essex Junction, a few miles out of the city. Mr. Green, having gone into the business scientifically, and not, as some do, without knowledge of what to do or how to do it, is making a success, and people come from far and near to see his handsome lot of the Triumph strain of White Wyandottes, several hundred of which are gathered in his model poultry farm of several acres of sandy loam range, or within the confines of his hen houses.

Mr. Green, after giving up business in Burlington, spent some time at the Connecticut experiment and agricultural college at Storrs, where he pursued a special course in poultry raising. He afterward acquired much practical knowledge on the poultry farm in Essex of Bert Abbey, a famous bass ball player in his day, who also found out that there was money in hens, if you only knew how.

Mr. Green then rented a part of the dairy farm of D. M. Johnson of Essex Junction and erected a model henery, following out plans which are a combination of those designed by Prof. Gowell of the Maine experiment station and those of W. R. Candee, a successful breeder of Wyandotte fowls in De Witt, N. Y. The building is sixty feet long by twenty feet wide, and along one side, the sunny side, are rows of large windows, to allow the maximum of light and air. The roosts are screened from wind and storm by muslin curtains.

The walls are six inches of solid cement, and the floor, which is sand, is covered with litter and straw, to allow proper exercise for the fowls. The house is divided into six pens, ten feet by twenty feet in dimensions, each with a capacity for fifty hens. Roosts are of cypress wood and are live proof. The most modern trap nests are used. There are two fields, each a hundred feet long, extending the length of the building and adjacent to it, on either side. These are used alternately.

card index system, which record is carefully watched, so that if a hen falls below the average for any length of time she is promptly disposed of, Mr. Green preferring to breed only from hens that are above the average in productiveness.

Cypher incubators are used in hatching, each compartment of the brooder accommodating from fifty to seventy-five chicks, where they are housed until old enough to be taken away. The dry feed for hens is fed through hoppers, which may be regulated as desired. Grain, clover, bones, etc., are cut up on the premises by a cutter run by electric power.

Mr. Green gets lots of eggs and, of course, at this season gets a whopping price for them. He intends to increase his plant from year to year, as he finds opportunity.

EELS' LONG JOURNEYS.

Strange Stories from New Zealand About Overland Trips.

Prof. Drummond, the New Zealand naturalist, writing on the subject of the journeys of animals, observes that reindeer, foxes, hares, seals, whales, rats, many species of fish, a few species of reptiles, and even insects, undertake some very extraordinary migrations.

In New Zealand, the most notable migrants are birds, but seals are known to set out on long journeys and to return to their own homes again; and the migrations of the Maori rat, especially in the Nelson and Marlborough districts, where countless thousands, led by an invisible piper, swarmed for many days across fields, through villages, over rivers and up hill and down dale, have become important events in the local history.

The migrations of eels have not attracted so much attention as the movements of other animals, but are quite as remarkable.

philosophical investigations have proved beyond all doubt that eels breed in the sea, but far out at sea, where their breeding places have been found.

Old Maoris on the west coast of the North Island state that when the eels go toward the sea in a large body they are led by two individuals of an enormous size. John R. Macdonald of Levin told Mr. Bruce that he once saw one of these migrations, with two large eels in the van.

Overland journeys at night, which are characteristic of some eels, have been noted in New Zealand. Mr. Bruce has been told by some very old Maori friends that they have known eels to undertake fairly long journeys by night.

On one occasion, the Maoris had camped for the night on a spur that is the watershed between the Mangahau and Mangawhere rivers. About midnight, their attention was attracted by the barking of a dog, which was much excited and was barking furiously.

When they went out to ascertain the cause of the disturbance, they found that the dog was following up an enormous eel, which was on one of its land journeys.—London Standard.

One Pill

It is impossible to be well, simply impossible, if the bowels are constipated. Waste products, poisonous substances, must be removed from the body at least once each day, or there will be trouble. The dose of Ayer's Pills is small, only one pill at bedtime. All vegetable.
